

(<https://academicjournal.io/>)

➔ Login (<https://papers.online-conferences.com/index.php/titfl/login>)

Download (<https://papers.online-conferences.com/index.php/titfl/article/view/604/573>)

"ONLINE - CONFERENCES" PLATFORM

(<https://papers.online-conferences.com/index.php/titfl/index>)

Available online 24 November 2021, 604

In Press, Corrected Proof (<https://papers.online-conferences.com/index.php/titfl/issue/view/onlineFirst>)

(https://service.elsevier.com/app/answers/detail/a\_id/22801/supporthub/sciencedirect/)

Full Length Article

Giving Feedback to Language Learners

Hasanova Kh. F., Shigabutdinova D. Y.,

Published 24 November 2021

Check for updates

Share (https://twitter.com/share?text=Giving Feedback to Language Learners&url=https://papers.online-conferences.com/index.php/titfl/article/view/604&via=SangiaNews @SRMadhy)

Cite

Under a Creative Commons license ()

Open AccessGet rights and content

Abstract

Feedback is an essential part of effective learning and teaching foreign languages. Feedback helps students understand the subject being studied and gives them clear guidance on how to improve their learning. In this article we discuss some techniques of giving feedback in providing students engagement and to enhance learning and improve assessment performance.

Keywords

feedback; language; learning; teaching; technique; assessment

Declarations

