Abstract. This article highlights creative methods for teaching foreign languages, practical methods for teaching the target language, and facilities our president has set up for foreign language study in our nation.

Key words: Nowadays, there is a huge demand for foreign language learning and teaching. In our country, a great number of scientific disciplines are selected each year, and development is carried out gradually. A new system for teaching foreign languages that can establish a strong foundation for the future was heavily debated at one of the video selectors held by the president of Uzbekistan, Sh. Mirziyoyev in 2021.

Today, the right type of methodology used by extremely expertise individuals is crucial in teaching foreign languages. Here are some techniques for improving the effectiveness and significance of foreign language instruction:

One of the well-liked techniques employed by many English language teachers is communicative language teaching (CLT). This approach is built on showing pupils how to use their linguistic abilities to their advantage in everyday settings. The learners can employ a range of interactive games and real materials, but the transitions in this approach mostly depend on how effectively the language learners enunciate the words and the communication process.

Cooperative Language Learning (CLL), approach to teaching focuses on getting the most out of small groups or pairs of students. It is regarded as an additional teaching strategy. The student's involvement in language learning is quite high with this approach.

Learning foreign languages is becoming more and more critical because of Uzbekistan's open policy, quick entry into the global economy, and expansion of international collaborations in numerous industries. According to the current statistics, 25 higher education institutions in our nation provide courses in foreign languages; however, in 2016, there were only seven of them. Due to these numbers, the quantity of graduates with a certificate in a foreign language has multiplied by ten over the last three years. The "El-Yurt Umidi" fund will also give 350 students from all over the regions of Uzbekistan the opportunity to study abroad at international colleges.

The time has come to establish a new system for teaching foreign languages in our nation, which will lay a strong foundation for the future, and at the same time, we should set ourselves the goal of creating a competitive state, according to our president in the video selector aimed at the development of foreign languages. Schools, lyceums, colleges, and universities will henceforth place a strong emphasis on the requirement that graduates have a perfect command of at least two foreign languages. It was declared that the Agency for Popularization of Foreign Languages would be founded under the Cabinet of Ministers to serve this objective. This organization promotes successful teaching strategies, curricula, and textbooks in the educational system, assisting students in achieving fluency in foreign languages. It arranges for the teaching of at least 10 foreign languages according to the requirements of educational institutions, programs, and fields. The head of our state also underlined the necessity to support firefighters in accordance with their credentials and to provide them with appropriate working conditions. It was specifically determined to grant a 40% rise to individuals who have earned the basic and intermediate levels of the international certificate, as well as a 50% increase to those who have demonstrated strong outcomes in their work. 207 schools in towns and districts were chosen to offer comprehensive foreign language instruction. It was decided that courses would be taught in foreign languages and that innovative educational programs and methods would be widely implemented in these schools.

For many years, there was just one method of instruction, the teacher would explain the lesson, memorize it, and then repeat it. This made it difficult for students to think creatively. However, contemporary approaches to teaching must be more practical and student-centered. There was just one method of instruction for many centuries, which was to explain the lesson and have the student memorize it. Students were unable to think creatively because of this. However, contemporary approaches to teaching must be more practical and student-centered.

In conclusion, the necessity for communication from participating in activities is disseminating globally faster than before. Without a doubt, learning a language facilitates the interchange of ideas among members of the commonwealth. A lot of work is being done, in particular, to increase the lesson's productivity and efficiency in order to implement and advance the teaching of foreign languages. First and foremost, this can be seen in the widespread use of cutting-edge teaching techniques in the instruction of foreign languages, which in turn helps pupils learn material more effectively. Students' capacity for problem-solving, critical thinking, and decision-making increases significantly when current teaching approaches are used.
